

Sara Ferranti – The Voice That Brings Characters to Life

Sara Ferranti, born on March 30, 1982, in Terni, Italy, is a renowned Italian voice actress known for her exceptional talent, emotional range, and versatility. With a well-established career in the dubbing industry, she has earned recognition for her ability to breathe life into iconic characters across film, television, and animation.

Dubbing Career – Film

-  The Tomorrow War (2021) – Voice of Colonel Muri Forester (Yvonne Strahovski)
-  Project X (2012) – Voice of Alexis (Alexis Knapp)
-  Piranha 3D (2010) – Voice of Crystal (Riley Steele)

Dubbing Career – TV Series

-  The Blacklist – Voice of Alina Park (Laura Sohn)
-  Orange Is the New Black – Voice of Amber (Laura Luccardi)
-  Love Is in the Air – Voice of Ceren Başar (Melisa Döngel)

Dubbing Career – Animation

-  Star Wars: The Bad Batch (2021) – Voice of Depa Billaba
-  Disenchantment (2018) – Voice of Mora
-  LEGO Star Wars Christmas Special (2020) – Voice of Rey

International Recognition

Sara Ferranti gained widespread acclaim for her role as the Italian voice of Nihan Sezin in the Turkish TV series Endless Love. Her emotionally rich and nuanced performance brought the character to life for Italian audiences, contributing significantly to the show's success in Italy.

With her recognizable voice, expressive delivery, and strong stage presence behind the microphone, Sara Ferranti remains one of the most respected and sought-after voice actresses in the Italian dubbing scene. Her work continues to resonate with audiences, adding depth, soul, and authenticity to every character she portrays.